ABOUT IRON MILL COLLEGE

Iron Mill College was founded in 1981, taking its name from a stream that ran past its original home on the edge of Exmoor, Devon.

We're a specialist college with campuses in Exeter and Poole. We were established with the specific purpose of offering psychotherapy and psychological well-being courses that held space for students to express their individuality and creativity as developing professional practitioners. This continues to be the bedrock of our excellent reputation as a specialist, and leading provider of mental health and well-being education and training.

Since then, we have welcomed over 9000 students through our doors from those starting out on their journey to becoming counsellors or psychotherapists, to seasoned professionals seeking to further their skills. We deliver a range of courses for qualifying and post-qualifying counsellors and psychotherapists, which are laid out in this prospectus. We also have a rich CPD programme.

We also run a professional, affordable counselling service for the local community - Iron Mill Counselling Service. The majority of our counsellors and psychotherapists are mature students in advanced professional training at Iron Mill College and work for the service voluntarily.

We are particularly proud of our alumni who create and run local and regional services; our students join them in direct fieldwork experience that is central to courses; and we are proud to have been creating, contributing to, and supporting this network for over four decades.

YOUR LOCAL COUNSELLING AND PSYCHOTHERAPY COLLEGE

"I have never before learned so much about myself and about where I want to go in the future. I couldn't imagine a better place for my development than at the Iron Mill. The tutors, staff and students are all fantastic. Thanks to all of them."

"My Iron Mill experience has been the hardest but most rewarding and life-changing experience of my life. The way of learning really suits me and the people at the college are passionate about counselling and getting the best out of their students"

"It's a place where you can fully be yourself, and life outside the classroom doesn't exist. This space allows you to fully connect with yourself, and to get to know who you are without any interference."

"I wasn't sure what to expect of the Iron Mill course but I loved every minute of it. The tutors and course content are nothing short of excellent, I would definitely recommend studying here. Thank You so much!"

"I thoroughly enjoyed my time at Iron Mill - there is a relaxed and welcoming atmosphere which makes for a very positive learning environment. My tutor was excellent and the course content was both challenging and enjoyable. I have gained invaluable new skills and made lasting friendships."

COUNSELLING TRAINING

The counselling profession is self-regulating which results in many courses being advertised at various levels and different costs. This variety even extends to online courses.

It's important to remember that Levels ascribed to other types of vocational courses may not always equate to counselling training. This can make it difficult for you to choose the best course. It is more reliable to choose a counselling course based on number of hours studied and the organisations which accredit or quality check courses. All Iron Mill courses are accredited, or quality checked.

The Iron Mill offers an integrative model of counselling which provides students learning opportunities in a wide range of different theories, topics and practice. An integrative approach has become increasingly popular because of the wide range of problems and personalities that present in counselling.

PSYCHOTHERAPY TRAINING

The main professional body for psychotherapists in this country is the UK Council for Psychotherapy (UKCP). They set out Standards of Education and Training for the psychotherapy training courses that they Accredit. These psychotherapy courses are all at least 4 years long, and at Postgraduate level (these are requirements of the UKCP).

At the Iron Mill, the Integrative and Relational Psychotherapy programme is accredited by UKCP. The programme is grounded in Relational Transactional Analysis and the training is recognised by International TA organisations. The programme is designed to lead to qualification as a UK based psychotherapist.

Transactional analysis is an integrative modality, with a depth of theory that has been developed over 60 years and continues to evolve. Because of this, the theoretical concepts link well together and inform thinking about each other and clinical practice. It is an extremely robust theory that allows the psychotherapist to remain grounded, even when working with very complex problems.

COUNSELLING SKILLS WEEKEND CERTIFICATE

Course Information

Full time, two day weekend course

Exeter and Poole Campus

Type - Entry Level

Course Description

The Counselling Skills weekend certificate has been developed for students who wish to apply for the Iron Mill advanced courses but have completed their certificate in counselling online, with a tutor. As advanced courses require face-to-face counselling skills experience, the College doesn't accept online only certificates. This weekend certificate provides the additional experience needed and upon successful completion, candidates may make application to the advanced courses, subject to other criteria being met.

There is a such a plethora of online counselling courses, of varying content, depth and hours of study, that we advise you to contact us to check your eligibility for this top up weekend.

Learning Outcomes

At the heart of the Counselling Skills Weekend Certificate are five overarching educational aims. These are that the course will:

- Encourage and provide opportunities for the development of basic counselling skills;
- Enhance student self-awareness and reflective skills;
- Encourage awareness of difference and diversity;
- Facilitate group participation
- Encourage the use of self-reflection

Entry Requirements

A Level 2 or Level 3 Certificate where counselling skills component was delivered online.

Progression

On successful completion of the course, in addition to your initial certificate in counselling training, you may apply for and progress onto either our Advanced Diploma or the FdA Foundation Degree in Integrative Counselling course, or the Transactional Analysis (TA) Psychotherapy (UKATA accredited).

Cost

The course is £200 for the weekend

Course Information

2-day workshop

In-person training

Available at Exeter

Type - Entry Course

Course description

This in person course, delivered over 2-days, will be of interest to anyone wanting to learn about the key concepts and theories of Transactional Analysis (TA), as a way of understanding what makes people tick.

A stand-alone course, with a standardised syllabus agreed by international TA organisations, recognised by the European Association of Transactional Analysis (EATA) and the International Transactional Analysis Association (ITAA). Participants will be awarded an officially recognised TA 101 certificate upon completion.

TA theory provides ways of looking at ourselves and our relationships, as a way of understanding the ways we communicate and the repeating patterns we get into. It can be applied in counselling and psychotherapy, in organisations and in education.

TA is a social psychology with a depth of theory on: Personality - how people are structured psychologically and the impact this has on their thinking, feeling and behaviour; Communication - how we interact (transact) with one another and within organisations; and Human Development – how, through interactions with individuals and our environment, our personality develops through childhood and later.

Explores the concepts of Ego States, Transactions, Psychological Games, Life Scripts and more. Uses examples from daily life and simple group exercises, allowing participants to discuss how they can use TA theory to think about themselves and their interactions with others.

Progression

This is the pre-requisite for those who wish to go on to study TA at an advanced level.

CERTIFICATE IN TRANSACTIONAL ANALYSIS THEORY AND PRACTICE

Course Information

Part-time, nine months

In-person training

Available at Exeter

UKCP Accredited

Type - Entry Level - Level 5 equivalent

Course Description

This training offers an exciting opportunity to explore the fundamental theories and concepts of Transactional Analysis (TA) and their relevance to personal life, decisions, and relationships. It is the essential foundation year for future study. This year is also valuable for anyone seeking personal growth and development. It can be transformative in terms of self-discovery, giving a deeper understanding of personality, choices and your personal relationships.

The course runs for 9 weekends from October to June during which you'll deepen your understanding of a wide array of TA theories and approaches as well as learning practical counselling skills from our tutors. Our tutors are highly experienced Transactional Analysis psychotherapists, supervisors and trainers. They are committed to providing creative learning experiences that are based on the experiences and needs of the learning group.

Entry Requirements

There is no specific qualification or experience required, though there is an assessment process via written statement, online application form and an in person or online interview. This is to assess personal and professional readiness to do this training. Consideration is given to the academic, financial and emotional demands this training will have. It is positioned at equivalent to a level 5. To complete the year and gain the certificate, you will need to complete a TA 101 and it is recommended that you do this first if possible.

Progression

The next stage is the Advanced Diploma in Integrative Psychotherapy (Relational TA) Course which can lead to qualifying as a UKCP-Registered psychotherapist and as a Certified Transactional Analysts with a specialism in psychotherapy.

ADVANCED DIPLOMA IN INTEGRATIVE PSYCHOTHERAPY (RELATIONAL TA)

Course Information

Part-time, four years

In-person training

Available at Exeter

UKCP Accredited

Type - Advanced Course - Level 7 equivalent

Course description

The aim of this course is to provide comprehensive training in Transactional Analysis psychotherapy. This is a thorough, integrated and relational approach to psychotherapy, which includes the depth and breadth required to meet national training requirements and build knowledge and experience as a practitioner.

Relational psychotherapy aims to allow clients to change in profound ways, to improve their lives, their relational patterns and ways of being in the world. It allows the psychotherapist and client to work in depth, in the long term, with complex psychological problems, including some serious mental illnesses. It has models that provide structure and can describe and shed light on important conscious and non-conscious processes. The theory can be used for reflection and to provide direction for the work.

This is a four year course comprising three years teaching, followed by a dissertation year which leads to the final qualifications. For the first three years, the programme runs between September and July for 10 weekends in total.

Entry Requirements

You will need to have successfully completed the Iron Mill Certificate in Transactional Analysis Theory and Practice (CTAP). If you have studied a TA Foundation course at another TA institute (training to have been in person), we would need a reference confirming that you have been approved to start client work. You will also be required to attend for interview.

Progression

Students are prepared for working as psychotherapists in a variety of settings and (through the qualification process), gain UKCP Registration as a psychotherapist.

Cost

£3,000.00 - £3,200.00

At Iron Mill Catalyst, we help teams and leaders build the skills, self-awareness, and emotional intelligence needed to thrive in today's complex world.

Our tailor-made training is co-designed with you – built around your strategic objectives, culture, and challenges. Whether you're a public sector body, a private company, or a mission-led organisation, we bring expertise in mental health, coaching, counselling, and personal development to deliver outcomes that last.

- ✓ Stronger resilience and reduced stress across teams
- ✓ Improved communication and collaboration
- ✓ More confident, emotionally intelligent leadership
- ✓ A connected, supportive company culture where people thrive

Flexible delivery

Half-day, full-day, or multi-session options

In-person, hybrid, virtual

Tailored to leadership, teams, or company-wide rollouts

Why it works

Counselling and psychotherapy are fundamentally about deep listening, empathy, resilience, and change—all critical to personal and organisational success. By bringing these practices into the workplace, we help teams move beyond surface-level solutions to create lasting transformation.

Iron Mill Counselling Service (IMCS) offers a professional, affordable counselling service in Exeter and Poole

Counselling offers a safe space to explore any difficulties you are experiencing in your life, regardless of age, gender, sexual orientation, ethnicity or disabilities.

- Individual counselling for adults
- Open to the public - referral letters are not necessary
- Daytime and evening appointments
- Low counselling fees

The majority of our counsellors and psychotherapists are mature students in advanced professional training at Iron Mill College and work for the service voluntarily. All counsellors are supported by experienced supervisors and are members of the British Association for Counselling and Psychotherapy (BACP) or the UK Council for Psychotherapy (UKCP)

You are welcome to get in touch and we'll arrange a free-of-charge initial phone call and/or initial consultation session to discuss your needs and whether we can be of assistance.

Call 01392 499388 or email counselling@ironmill.co.uk

We are here to listen.
